

there are many options, but there are some reasons to go with head nods.

Head nods are a common form of communication, and they can be used to convey a wide range of information. For example, a head nod can be used to indicate agreement, disagreement, or a lack of interest. It can also be used to convey a sense of surprise or excitement. In some cases, a head nod can be used to convey a sense of urgency or a need for attention. Head nods are a simple and effective way to communicate, and they can be used in a variety of situations.

